2009-10 WisLine Teleconference Series

November 17, 2009 (Tuesday), 10:30-Noon. GROWING COMMUNITIES, GREENING COMMUNITIES: FOCUS ON FLOODPLAINS – MANAGEMENT, RESOURCES AND POLICIES. (#1772-1). Flood preparedness and damage reduction are continued concerns for Wisconsin communities. Changes in weather patterns, due to climate change or other reasons, may lead to unexpected flooding impacts. New resources make it easier for communities to manage the floodplain in their community. This session will review flood plain regulations and new policy initiatives; the Community Rating System; new FEMA maps and flood insurance; and what to expect about changes in floodplains due to climate change. Presented by Gary Heinrich, WDNR Floodplain Planning Program Manager; Pete Nowak, UW Gaylord Nelson Institute and Environmental Resources Center; and Bob Watson, WDNR flood plain engineer. Moderated by Elaine Andrews, UW-Extension Environmental Resources Center.

December 16, 2009 (Wednesday), 10:30 - Noon. "WORKING LANDS" – a 21ST CENTURY TOOL FOR PRESERVING RURAL WISCONSIN. (#1772-2). "Passed as part of the 2009 -2011 biennial budget, the Working Lands Initiative aims to preserve current and future agricultural uses. January 13, 2010 (Wednesday), 10:30-noon. NR 115 – UNDERSTANDING THE NEW SHORELAND ZONING REGULATIONS. (#1772-3). The forty-year-old shoreland development standards for unincorporated areas -- those areas outside city and village boundaries -- are being updated to improve lake and river protection, provide more flexibility for property owners, and streamline the permitting process. The proposed changes were approved by the Natural Resource Board June 2009 and are now before the Legislature for final review. By the end of 2009 the revised shoreland development standards are expected to be in effect. Counties will then have two years to update their ordinances to reflect the new standards. These important changes are examined in this program. Presented by Gregory D. Breese, Water Regulations and Zoning Specialist, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources. Moderated by Brian W. Ohm, J.D., Land Use Law Specialist, Department of Urban & Regional Planning, UW-Madison/Extension.

February 10, 2010 (Wednesday), 10:30-Noon. ALTERNATIVE LAND USE REGULATIONS: DRIVEWAY, NUISANCE AND OTHER NON-ZONING LAND USE ORDINANCES. (#1772-4). Communities with and without comprehensive zoning have tackled land use related problems, such as crowded and unsafe road access, offensive property uses and even building restrictions, using ordinances under their authority to regulate for the health, safety or welfare of the public. Known as a municipal "police powers", local governments have controlled junk accumulation, historic preservation, and loud and offensive business uses outside of typical zoning authority. Find out about these non-zoning ordinances, court decisions supporting them and how these alternative regulations may help your community. *Presented by Thomas Harnisch, J.D., Education Director, Wisconsin Towns Association, and Philip Freeburg, J.D. Are there "win-win" alternatives for neighbors confronting annexation pressures? This program introduces the basic legal procedures and policy concepts to assist Cities, Villages and Towns addressing annexation, use of intergovernmental
